Lord Balarama

Yamuna Devi chastised

Once Lord Balarama, who was at the time living in Dwarka, came back to stay in Vrindavana for two months. At this time He enjoyed pastimes with His gopi friends (who were different from the gopis of Krishna).

Enjoying such pastimes on the bank of Yamuna at Rama-ghata, the Lord summoned Yamuna so that he could sport in the waters. When Yamuna devi did not respond, Lord Balarama took up His favorite weapon, His plow, and began to drag Yamuna in a hundred streams. Understanding the position of Balarama, Yamuna devi personally appeared and offered her obeisances to the Lord with many prayers in His glorification. Subsequently, Lord Balarama entered and bathed in the waters of the river.
